

Gateshead Autism Services Directory 2016

for Children and Families

Introduction

This directory provides useful information about services within Gateshead and the surrounding areas for people with Autism Spectrum Condition and their families.

A range of services are included, some of which are autism specific, while others cater for a wider group of people.

For those services which are autism specific, we've indicated this alongside the service information. Due to the nature of autism as a spectrum condition, the services listed in this directory will not be relevant for everyone. Therefore, eligibility criteria and referral details have been included where appropriate as well as contact details in order for you to seek further information.

We recognise that individuals will have personal preferences with regards to the terminology used for example; person with autism, autistic, autism spectrum disorder, autism spectrum condition etc. We have used the terminology as used by specific services when referencing them and elsewhere use person with autism and autism spectrum condition.

Gateshead Autism Steering Group

The Gateshead Autism Steering group is working to implement an Autism Strategy. Consultation with parents and families has told us that they want clearer information about the services and support that might be available to them. Part of the response to this feedback has been to create this directory. Another important aspect has been the development of the Autism Information Hub.

Autism Information Hub

The Autism Information Hub is located at Gateshead Central Library and offers resources about autism and a monthly face-to-face information and signposting service to people with autism, their families/carers and practitioners. A diagnosis of autism is not a requirement for accessing the Information Hub or seeking further advice.

Nurseries and Early Years' Providers

WHAT SUPPORT SHOULD I EXPECT MY CHILD TO RECEIVE FROM NURSERIES AND EARLY YEARS' PROVIDERS?

Nurseries and early years' providers in Gateshead must have arrangements in place in order to identify as early as possible if a child has additional needs and to provide relevant support for them using the setting's resources. You can ask a nursery/early years provider to provide you with information about how they do this or look for it on their website.

In Gateshead, a team of two SEN and Inclusion consultants support all early years' settings (local, private, voluntary and independent sector, childminders, maintained nurseries and schools) in order to identify SEN and put in place suitable interventions for children.

If a child is not making the expected progress, despite support and intervention from the setting, the child can be referred to the Special Educational Needs and Disability (SEND) panel. If deemed appropriate, support can then be provided by the Early Years Assessment and Intervention Team (EYAIT). Children with more complex developmental needs may also be signposted to appropriate services at this stage.

It also works with pre-school children who are experiencing difficulty with social communication and interaction.

Health

School nurses are also a good point of contact; their role is to improve and oversee children's health in school - they can provide care and support for children with disabilities or complex emotional needs and can also signpost children to relevant health services.

A school SENCO may also identify needs and refer your child to health services such as a speech therapist, physiotherapist or occupational therapist.
